V. NEW BUSINESS

a. Review of Plaque Design for Historic Preservation Award

- i. Staff presented two different distributors for plaques. Atlas Plaques provided samples for the commission to view. Prices range from $259-$389 depending on size. Healy plaques offer bronze and aluminum plaques. Their prices range from $174-$616 depending on size and material.
- ii. Commissioner Diver shared that if the date is very prominent on the plaque, it could be confused for the house number. Commissioner Diver feels that putting the date on the top of the plaque, with the house name being central, would alleviate confusion. Commissioners DeAntonis and Sabri feels the metal plaques would be a better choice because it would be long-lasting.
- iii. The commission has concerns about the durability of the high-density urethane plaque option and about theft of garden stakes.
- iv. The Commission likes the 6"x10" aluminum plaque from Healy Plaques, and to give the garden stake as an option with recommendations for installation from the commission. The Commission likes the phrasing from option 3, which lists the Circa Year across the top, and the name of the house in the middle, with Villa Park Historic Preservation Award across the bottom. The Commission would like the text to be in all capital letters.
- v. Staff will create a new mock-up so that the final decision can be made at the March 6th, 2025 meeting.
- vi. Commissioner Diver moved to continue to discussion of plaques to the March 6th meeting. The motion is seconded by Commissioner Sabri.

Voice vote:

AYES have it.

b. Review of Historic Preservation Award Applications

- i. Two applications have been received; the Divers Residence at 431 S Michigan Ave and the Stoltz Residence at 828 S Harvard Ave.
- ii. Simon Diver would like to submit additional information regarding the name of the house.
- iii. Staff will determine if the name should be based on the original owner of the land or the original owner of the residence.
- iv. Commissioner Diver would like additional information on the history of 828 S Harvard Ave.

437 South Michigan Avenue, Villa Park, Illinois 60181 - Lot #37 / Parcel #0609402010

Pre-1830 the region was primarily inhabited by Potawatomi native Indians. Ojibwa and Ottawa Indians also shared the land up until the Black Hawk Treaty of 1833, when native Indians were driven west, and settlers began arriving from New England, New York and Germany. Early settlers to the area of York Township, DuPage, included W.R. Potter, who purchased 80 acres around 1862. Emigres John & Charlotte (Sharlett) Finke (Finkey) arrived in the U.S. (New York) from Germany in 1856. They moved west, and in 1874 purchased the land from W.R. Potter. The U.S. Census of 1880 has them residing at dwelling number 314. Their farm was boarded to the north by what is now the Prairie Path, east, Harvard Avenue, south, Madison Street and west, Addison Avenue.

In 1880, their youngest son, Frederick, married Johanna Schafer (b.1860). He, and his siblings worked the family farm, as by then, John and Charlotte were in their 70's.

In 1908, Ballard, Pottinger & Co, a Chicago based real estate firm, purchased land and sub-divided it into 203 lots and streets, calling this new sub-division "Villa Park". An acre of land cost $350, 3 acre plot $875 and 5 acre plots $1,000. In 1910, they continued development in the area, acquiring a further 345 Lots, and naming the sub-division "Ardmore". They soon began to run free weekend excursion trains from Chicago to Ardmore station. In 1914, Villa Park and Ardmore were incorporated into the Village of Ardmore (Pop. 300). In 1917 the name was changed to Villa Park.

The Aurora, Elgin & Chicago Railroad was constructed during 1901-1902, and a commuter service began on August 25, 1902, until it was unceremoniously closed down at noon on July 3, 1957.

There were a number of early home builders in the area:

Charles C. Heisen (1854-1945) – Lived at 346 E. Highland Ave (built 1920), Daniel & Bill Elkins (1914/1918) – Built 339 E. Division St in 1914, Cy Williams, George Williams, Joseph M. Pelnar (c.1920), John C. Sterett (c.1922) – Lived at 249 S. Villa Ave for more than 20 years, N.O. Shively & Co, Earl L. Anderson (late 1920s), James S. Baker, Richard H. Barnett, J.W. Reedy (late 1920s/early 1930s)

World War 1 (1914-1918)

Ovaltine factory built (1917)

Prohibition (1920-1933)

In 1918 Johanna Finke (Frederick having died some years before) sold the farm, and Lot 37 was first recorded on May 17, 1918. The Warranty Deed held by DuPage County records has Johanna selling the whole of Lot 37 on October 30, 1918 (which was officially recorded on July 12, 1919), to:

KRUGGEL, Arthur (b. 1889) & Ethel (b. 1890) - Arthur was a real estate broker who went on to become President of the Chicago Real Estate Board in 1938.

June 16, 1926 the whole of Lot 37 sold to LURIE, Mandel (b. 1883 in Illinois) & Rae (b. 1888 in N. Dakota) - Mandel owned a real estate business.

(I believe it was during this time the house was constructed, but have been unable to establish an exact date or builder).

November 8, 1926 whole Lot sold to COWEN, Charles J. (b. 1897 in Illinois).

July 20, 1927 whole Lot sold to ZEMON, Herbert M. (b. 1895 in Illinois) & Christal (b. 1897 in Illinois) - Builder/Building contractor.

February 16, 1928 south half of Lot sold to QUARTULLO, Gioacchino (b. 1877 in Italy - AKA Jacque - Bricklayer) & Giannetta (b. 1887 in Belgium - AKA Jeanette).

April 2, 1929 south half of Lot sold to, SHALOWITZ, Nathan (b.1886 in Russia - sheet metal worker).

Great Depression (1929-1939)

March 19, 1930 south half of Lot sold to WDOVECH, Kalenik (b.1888 in Russia, AKA - John) & Mary (b.1895 in Yugoslavia) for a consideration of c.$5,000.

March 23, 1938 sold/transferred to WDOVECH, Mary.

World War 2 (1939-1945)

December 3, 1942 transferred ownership (possibly for tax purposes) to Bernice Henrickson for a short duration before reverting back to Kalenik (John) WDOVECH. The house was then lived in by one of his daughters, Eleanora (AKA Eleanor), who remained unmarried. The house was transferred into Trust at the York State Bank & Trust Co of Elmhurst by Eleanora and her siblings, Martha, Polia and Richard on December 30, 1977.

December 1, 1978, sold to brothers John & Sheridan NUNN ($60,500)

THE SOUTH 1/2 OF LOT 37 IN FAIRVIEW ADDITION TO VILLA PARK, BEING A SUBDIVISION IN THE WEST 1/2 OF THE SOUTHEAST 1/4 OF SECTION 9, TOWNSHIP 39 NORTH RANGE 11 EAST OF THE THIRD PRINCIPAL MERIDIAN, ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF RECORDED MAY 17, 1918 AS DOCUMENT 133218, IN DUPAGE COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Villa Park

Irene S. Martin

What is now Villa Park was once open prairie, criss-crossed by Indian trails. By the mid-1800s there were fifteen white families in the present-day Villa Park area. These were mostly German settlers who had come looking for good farm land. A map of the farms in 1862 shows the names of Frederick Graue, Henry Backhaus, Diedrick Meyer, August Strueber, H. F. Goltermann, Frederick Ahrens, and H. Hograue. Some of the old farm houses still stand — the Goltermann home at 27 E. Jackson, the Potter-Finke home at 222 W. Madison, and the Meyer-Domianus home at 618 S. Ardmore. All were built before the Civil War.

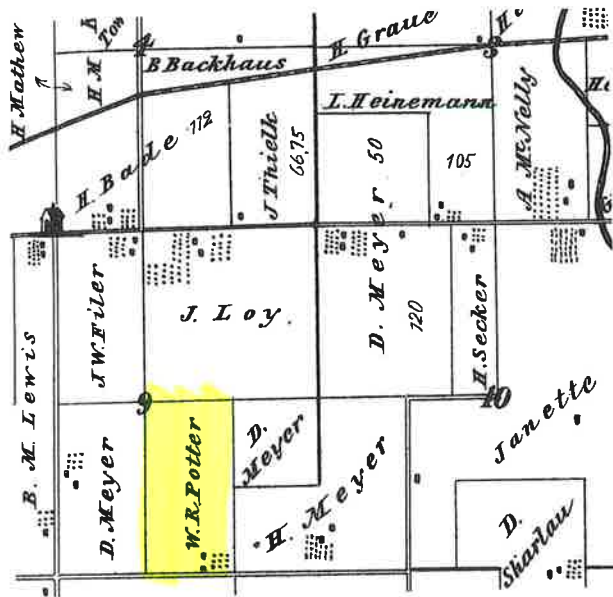

In a small handmade book is the first recorded entry for School District 9, dated April 1857. J. Loy, F. Summers, and A. Hatfield were elected directors. The school house was built on two lots on the corner of St. Charles Road and Meyers Road (Westmore). The lots cost $10.00 each. N. N. Johnson was hired to teach and do janitorial work at $33.00 per month.

In 1895 there were twenty-nine families. The district was renumbered District 45, which it remains today. The school was so crowded that when the Walter Olmacht family came to Villa Park in 1911, their son Frank had to delay attending a year until Ardmore School opened in 1912. Most of these same families went to the German United Reformed Lutheran Church in Dunklee's Grove (Bensenville today).

With increasing settlement came the need for better transportation. Farmers first went to Cottage Hill (Elmhurst today) to take the Frink and Walker Stagecoach. By 1849 they traveled on the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad (Chicago & Northwestern). At the close of the 19th century, the vicinity was still sparsely settled farmland. Then came the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Railway, a double track electric system. Florence Canfield and

Louis Meyer, two farmers, granted it a right-of-way through their land. The farm abstract of the Canfield land showed that it had been granted on April 19, 1900, for a consideration of $1.00. It was not long before Chicago real estate developers, Ballard and Pottinger, spotted the open land and saw an opportunity for opening a town along the new railroad.

What had been rumored to become a new cemetery instead became Villa Park. Its development was unique in that it began as two separate subdivisions. Villa Park was recorded in the DuPage County Recorder's office in 1908, and Ardmore to the west in 1910. To entice buyers of lots Ballard and Pottinger built Ardmore School, a train station, and planted hundreds of poplar trees along the newly laid-out streets. The firm ran free Sunday promotional excursions. Those who bought acre lots had their choice of 200 baby chicks or twenty apple trees.

The new communities attracted Chicago families who wanted country living. Among them were brokers, builders, bankers, and real estate men who built attractive homes. One of these was the Charles C. Heisen home on Villa Avenue, built about 1908. The twenty-one room mansion was constructed for Heisen's second wife, a New York actress. She took one look at muddy little Villa Park and returned to

New York. Heisen was the wealthiest man in Villa Park. His office in the Harris Trust Building in Chicago was headquarters for varied business interests. He built many homes in Villa Park and presented a building for the first church, the Community Congregational Church. He also owned the only water system in town.

Another interesting resident was William Calhoun, who preferred to be called "Colonel." His home was also on Villa Avenue. Colonel Calhoun opened the first store in Villa Park. To inform people when the store was open for business, he flew a red flag from a tall pole on top of the store. The building was later moved around the corner to Central Boulevard, and is now an attorney's office.

Near the Heisen home was that of John Montgomery, a Chicago banker. His son Jack became a cowboy stuntman who doubled for Tom Mix and other Hollywood stars in the 1930s. Jack's daughter became a child star at Century Studio where she appeared in 150 two-reel comedies. She was billed as Baby Peggy.

There was much rivalry between Villa Park and Ardmore. However, in order to acquire tax money for community improvements the two subdivisions united in 1914. The Village of Ardmore was incorporated on August 8, 1914.

The name was contested by the Villa Park section, and a vote taken in 1917. Since there were more people living in the Villa Park section, the name was changed to Villa Park on October 15, 1917, leaving many disgruntled citizens on the west side of the village. At that time the population was 300.

Women in Villa Park were interested in politics. Five years before the 19th Amendment gave women the right to vote, Marie Lueck had run for police magistrate, but lost. In 1916 Jeanette Bates was appointed first village attorney. She left office during the next year because she had been appointed assistant attorney general for Illinois, the first woman in an attorney general's office in the United States.

In 1917 Gottlieb Steiner was sent from Bern, Switzerland to set up the American factory for the Wander Company, the maker of Ovaltine. Villa Park had been chosen for the site because of the good water, the availability of farm products used in the manufacturing process, and the excellent transportation. Steiner's temporary assignment lengthened into thirty-seven years. Steiner is remembered for his many civic interests. He was one of the founders of Elmhurst Memorial Hospital and a leader in establishing the Villa Park Trust and Savings Bank.

Since it opened, Ovaltine has been headquartered at Number 1 Ovaltine Court. During both World Wars its product was used in Allied hospitals to aid in the recuperation of soldiers suffering from combat fatigue. Ovaltine has been an official supplier to the Summer and Winter Olympics since 1932. In the 1930s the company sponsored Little Orphan Annie programs on radio; Captain Midnight on radio in the 1940s, and on T.V. in the 1950s. Ovaltine grew to be Villa Park's largest industry and its greatest benefactor, especially during the Depression.

Even though Villa Park was a very small village when World War I began, there were twenty-nine men who enlisted. In 1920 twenty-six of them became charter members of the Villa Park American Legion Post 652. In 1929 the post purchased the old Community Congregational Church for its headquarters.

In the wake of World War I, Villa Park boomed. The population doubled in 1920 and 1925. New homes were going up rapidly. The streets were cinder, and only Ardmore Avenue had street lights, which were paid for by the Ardmore Community Club. There were no sidewalks. A common sight was a row of boots lined up at the train station, awaiting their owners for their muddy walk home. During the 1920s electricity was obtained from Chicago, Aurora & Elgin Railway generators in Lombard.

York High School was opened for Elmhurst and Villa Park students in 1924. Four elementary schools were built and the first full-time school superintendent, H. E. Hinkle, was hired. There were four new churches. Community services included a volunteer fire department organized by the Lions Club. Other developments in that decade were the building of a new village hall in 1929, the paving of Ardmore, Highland and Villa avenues, the publication of a newspaper called the Villa Park Weekly News, and house-to-house mail delivery.

Villa Park was acknowledged to be the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin's largest commuting customer; the railway was largely responsible for the community's growth. Villa Parkers no longer had to go to Elmhurst or Lombard to shop, to attend the movies, or to attend a funeral.

Then came the Depression, which hit Villa

Park very hard. Many families had bought lots to build homes; instead, they put up garages or only basements. Some lots became gardens, but many were just weed patches. In 1932 there were over 300 destitute families. Stores extended credit; doctors "forgot" to charge; and bartering became common. Kranz Hardware Store exchanged a keg of nails for a woman's diamond ring. Ovaltine (Wander Company) helped the banks remain open, established a relief fund, and took Ovaltine to all the school children. Canning parties were held in the churches. There were many W.P.A. sponsored activities; tennis and basketball courts were installed. The Men's Garden Club was formed, and is known today as the world's largest men's garden club. Free amateur shows were presented at the Community Congregational Church, and a private kindergarten was opened by Mrs. Raymond Sears in her home. In 1931, despite the hard times, Villa Park had the lowest crime rate in DuPage County.

Then came Pearl Harbor. Many young men and women joined the armed services. The Ardmore Community Club raised money for the service men and women. Victory gardens were planted along the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin's right-of-way. Teen-agers collected scrap iron and paper. Red Cross work was done at the V.F.W. Post 2801, and service flags were in windows throughout the town. After World War II young families flocked to Villa Park. Unincorporated areas were annexed and developed along North Avenue on the north and Roosevelt Road on the south. The population increased from 8,000 in 1940 to 25,000 in 1965. In 1950 the Reedy Ranch Homes, with twenty-five-year mortgages at 5½% interest, were rapidly erected. The influx of people brought the need for more schools and churches of other denominations. Elementary schools were enlarged. Jackson Junior High School and Willowbrook High School were built. Harold Reskin's Midland Enterprise opened homes in the northwest section of Villa Park between 1955 and 1960. The library purchased the old Trinity Lutheran Church at 305 South Ardmore for its first permanent home, having been in six different locations previously.

After the opening of Congress Street Expressway (Eisenhower) in the mid-fifties, the Chicago Aurora & Elgin abandoned passenger service in 1957 — a sad event for Villa Park. In the 1960s the track was removed and the roadbed became the Illinois Prairie Path, which extends like a ribbon through the village from east to west.

In the late 1950s Villa Park identified itself as "The Garden Village," incorporating it into the logo which it uses today. In 1954 the Woman's Club was presented with an award by the DuPage County Board of Realtors for extraordinary accomplishment in the improvement and beautification of the community. Also in that year the Easter Seal Center purchased the old Salt Creek School and moved it to 706 E. Park Boulevard. Two years later it became the DuPage Chapter of the Illinois Association for the Crippled.

Progress continued in the 1960s. Tax referenda were passed for enlarging schools and a new wing was added to Willowbrook High School. In 1965 the Park Development Program began with ten parks on forty-five acres. People no longer asked, "Where is the park in Villa Park?" A new library opened in 1969, a far cry from the store front at 317 S. Ardmore in 1928, with its 400 books collected in a little red wagon in a house-to-house drive. There was 90% home ownership. Professional people comprised 15% of the population, which had reached a peak of 25,000. In 1965 Villa Park celebrated its Golden Jubilee.

The last decades have seen many changes. Businesses have sprung up, especially on the north and south boundaries. For years Ovaltine was the only factory of any size. In the 1970s a large industrial tract on North Avenue developed. Today there are seventy-nine manufacturers listed for Villa Park in the 1982 Illinois Manufacturer's Directory, and 846 businesses noted in the Villa Park Chamber of Commerce.

In the early days the two separated business districts on Villa Avenue and Ardmore Avenue flourished. Now two large shopping centers, North Park Mall on North Avenue and Villa Oaks Shopping Center on Roosevelt Road, have again created separate districts in the four-mile long village. The old downtown is suffering. The shopping centers, however, generate revenues which provide capital to meet the need of the village.

The Odeum opened in 1983 and is a multi-purpose facility for entertainment, the fourth largest free-span building in the United States. In that same year the first phase of a $12,000,000 project to reduce flooding was completed.

Villa Park is a maturing community, with no room to grow. This fact accounts for the decline of student population from a peak of 6,700 in 1967, to 3,600 in 1983. Eight of the fourteen schools closed are due to declining enrollment. One of the closed school buildings is now a popular senior citizen's center.

There are other changes. In the beginning Villa Park citizens were mostly of German and Swedish origin, and of Lutheran religious practice. Today there are persons of English, Italian, Polish, Spanish, and French descent with 80% of newcomers being of the Roman Catholic faith. According to the 1980 census, there were 22,356 whites, 124 blacks, 22 American Indians, 73 Japanese, 33 Chinese, 107 Filipinos, 79 Koreans, 17 Vietnamese, and 151 Asian Indians.

Thirty years ago there were virtually no apartments in Villa Park. Today there are over 1,900 apartments, town houses, and condominium units interspersed with two-story homes, modest bungalows, ranches, and split levels. The population has decreased from 25,000 to 23,185. The village has received a $40,000 state grant for devising a master plan, which will go to the DuPage Regional Planning Commission for an analysis of the community.

This history would not be complete without recognizing the contribution made by a variety of civic minded men and women.

Mrs. Bessie Mabee and her husband bought the first home in Ardmore. She was the first president of the Woman's Club. She is best known for writing in 1936 the first history of Villa Park.

Pete McAleese worked with youths coaching baseball and track for three generations. He worked at R. R. Donnelly Company, and often rode his bicycle to work in the city.

Mrs. Hilda Schulze lived in Villa Park for more than sixty years. She was known for her work as Public Health Nurse for DuPage County.

Dr. L. R. Cortesi started the first emergency medical service in the fire department.

He was also the Ovaltine and the Willowbrook sports doctor.

Father Kennedy came to Villa Park in 1924. Under his leadership St. Alexander's Church, fondly called the "Wooden Ark," was built. It was to be only a temporary structure; but due to the Depression it was used until 1953. The St. Alexander's school was built in 1925 because he felt it was needed more than the church building. Father Kennedy lived to see his dream come true. The new church was dedicated in 1954.

Since 1976 Villa Park has become history conscious. During the bicentennial the village purchased the two Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad stations. In 1977 the Villa Park Historical Society was incorporated, as was the Historical Commission, an arm of the village government. In 1978 the historical society leased the Villa Avenue station and rededicated it as a museum, exactly fifty years after its construction. In 1980 the Historical Commission was able to obtain listing of the Ardmore station on the National Register of Historical Places, as an example of Prairie School architecture. Restoration of the building is underway. It will be dedicated as a half-way stop on the Prairie Path for hikers and bicyclists.

The 125th year of School District 45 was marked in 1983, with a time capsule buried in Memorial Park. It will be opened in the year 2008.

As viewed in the perspective of this history, it is evident that community spirit, combined with hard work, brought Villa Park through many ups and downs. We trust that the same process will continue to do so in the future.

SHIVELY BUYS SIXTY ACRES; PRICE IS $91,000

N. O. Shively took title to two tracts during the last week. In one deal he bought forty acres on Madison street, Villa Park, for a reported $61,000, Cummings & Foreman handling the deal for both parties. In the other he bought a twenty acre tract at River Grove, fronting on Fullerton avenue, for a reported $30,000. A. C. Hoy & Co. represented Mr. Shively and Fred Rathje the seller. Both pieces of property were bought for future development.

VILLA PARK TO HAVE ANOTHER GARDEN "SUB"

Project to Have Trio Small Parks.

N. O. Shively & Co. announce that their "Madison Street Gardens," at the intersection of Madison street and Ardmore avenue, in Villa Park, will follow the idea outlined by John R. Robertson & Co. in their Madison Street-Ardmore subdivision, adjoining the Shively tract on the east, and lay out a generous portion of the land in small parks.

There'll be three of these breathing spaces; named Morningside park, Evergreen park, and Sunset park. The largest will be approximately 575x120 feet. Evergreen park will be 500x128, while Sunset park, the smallest of the trio, will be 400x128.

In laying out the three small parks a certain portion will be allotted for a baseball ground, a portion for a playground, and the balance will be planted with trees, shrubbery, and flowers.

According to Shively & Co., improvements on the property will start immediately in order to be ready for building by next September.

The Madison Street Gardens extend south to Jackson street and west to Harvard avenue. Yale avenue will extend from north to south in a sweeping curve across the subdivision.

SHIVELY BUILDS 231 RESIDENCES AT VILLA PARK

Homes Being Put Up in 50 Different Designs.

Villa Park is the scene of an important home building project. N. O. Shively & Co. announce that they are starting work this week on the second unit of their residence program in Shively Manor, a section of Villa Park.

This unit consists of 141 homes. The first unit, started several months ago, now has fifty-four homes either finished or under way, with plans for an additional thirty-six to be started at once. The entire investment for both projects will be in the neighborhood of $1,701,800, it is stated. There will be 231 homes in all.

The residences, while having similar floor plans, will be of fifty different designs, mostly of English or Spanish inspiration. B. J. Bruns is architect. There will be five rooms in each house downstairs, with unfinished attics that will be capable of being divided into three rooms should the owners elect.

Each residence will be of face brick on all sides. The houses will be heated by hot water, and will be equipped with electrical refrigeration and other modern conveniences. The average size is 27x50 feet.

A feature of the development is an arrangement whereby playgrounds 540 feet long and 114 feet wide are located in the center of each block. A portion of the playgrounds will be a park laid out with trees and shrubbery, a part will be set aside for sand piles and playing apparatus for the tiny tots, while the balance of the ground may be used for football and baseball by the older children.

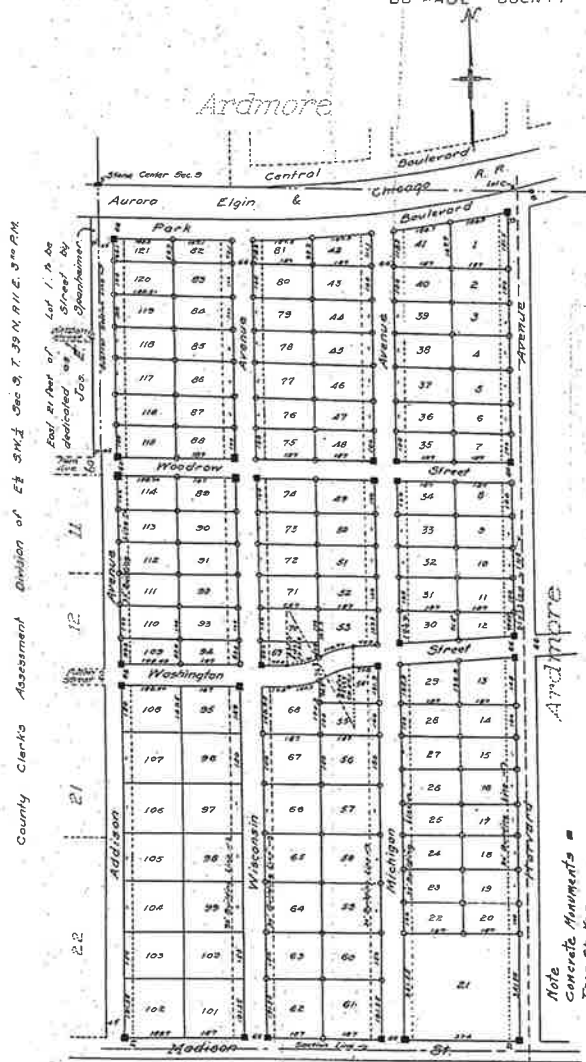

Both developments are located in south Villa Park, fronting on Madison street. Twenty-five residences of the first unit have already been sold.
